'Aesthetic, Bioactive, Ceramic, Direct; Protocol Driven Excellence'

Predictable protocols with the materials that work with the tooth structure, are evolving. Single shade, simplified shade, and bulk-fill/flowable universal composites allow us to do more with less inventory and fresher materials. Universal bonding agents create stronger bonds using dentist preferred techniques. Bioactive materials are the latest buzz. We will get past the hype and teach you all the products available and when and how they can be optimally used. Effective communication and treatment planning is imperative. Learn how to use photography to allow patients to see their oral condition and make the right decisions. Proportional smile design in conjunction with personality traits can be used to create smiles that fit the face and match the temperament of the patient. With many new all-ceramic materials available it can be difficult to choose which one to use. Learn how to select the best choice for each patient. We will show examples of each and teach you how to prepare, personalize, and seat them for long-term success. This presentation will update you on the latest materials and techniques allowing you to be more confident and successful.

Course Objective:

At the end of the program participants should be able to:

- Understand the trend towards single shade, simplified shade, and bulk fill/flowable universal composites to increase predictability and efficiency
- Learn about the latest advancements in bonding agents which increase bond strengths and long-term stability
- Demystify the hype around bioactive materials and learn how these can effectively interact with the oral environment to reduce sensitivity and increase remineralization

- Learn how to effectively communicate using digital dental photography to help patients make the best informed choices
- Design smiles using proportional and personality-based models that better match their face and temperament
- Learn how to select and use the appropriate all-ceramic crowns to use in each situation
